SWEET CHALYBEATE.

DELIGHTFUL GERMAN, PHANTOM BALLS AND FLIRTATIONS.

(Special to Virginian-Pilot.)

Sweet Chalybeate, Va., Aug. 25.—Generally the middle of August marks the height of the season at summer resorts. At the Sweet Chalybeate this year has proved an exception to the rule, and each week has been filled with social events of various kinds. Quite the prettiest of the season was given Tuesday evening. Maltese-hair fern formed the principal decoration, with large bunches of carnations here and there. Dainty prize figures and the lovely ones were Misses Leahy, Boykin and Old, Messrs. Richter and Day. Among the dancers were the Misses Heath, Chamberlain, Allyn, Cooke, Taylor, Kinn, Carter, Marshall, Hume, Ferebee, Old, Hilliard, Old, Boykin, Exall, Messrs. Shelton, Old, Doble, Cooke, Reynolds, Hume, Supplee, O'Brien, Day, Pegram, Dennard, Dunn, Short, Carney, Trotman and Richter. Chaperones were Mesdames Cooke, O'Brien, Taylor, Boykin, Doble, Webster and Walton.

The phantom ball Monday night was a distinct success and hugely enjoyed by all the dancers. Many were the flirtations carried on under the masks, but great was the disappointment when time arrived for unmasking. Misses Mabel Allyn and Margaret Old entertained their friends delightfully Saturday evening. The night was a glorious one, and pretty Japanese lanterns added to the picturesqueness of the scene. Those present were the Misses Ferebee, Heath, Walton, Allyn, Ferebee, Old, Chamberlain, Saunders, Hilliard, Leigh, Cooke, Marshall, and Messrs. Cooke, Doble, Reynolds, Hume, Cooke, Pegram, Supplee, Shelton, Dennard, Day, Short, Mrs. Webster chaperoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant gave their daughter Miss Ruth Grant a charming euchre party Saturday evening. The successful players were the Misses Shepard and Mr. Simpson, while Miss Thelma and Mr. Hume carried off the booby prizes. After the game a light supper was served.

A delightful card party was given on the lawn Friday morning by Miss Saunders of Newport News. Miss Saunders' guests were the Misses Heath, Walton, Old, Ferebee, Allyn, Simpson, Miss Boykin won first prize, a paper cutter and Miss Heath the second prize a lovely cup and saucer. After the game lunch was served under the trees.

Mr. Henry Cooke, of Baltimore, gave a delightful dinner Wednesday to the Misses Lewis, of Lynchburg. Those present were the Misses Heath, Ferebee, Old, Thom, Cooke and Dennard.

Friday night an informal marshmallow roast was given by Miss Myers. Miss Myers' guests were Misses Marshall, O'Connor, Exall, Leigh, Taylor, Kinn, and Messrs. Shelton, Cooke, Supplee, O'Brien. Chaperoned by Mesdames Eakle and Catlin.

Mrs. R. B. Cooke gave a delightful seven-hand euchre party Thursday morning. The players were Mesdames Taylor, Beck, Doble, Watkins and Cooke and Leigh. Mrs. Cooke won the prize, a lovely pin.

Miss Landon Walton and Miss Kitty Heath, of Norfolk, gave a delightful bowling party Wednesday evening. The players were: The Misses Old, Chamberlain, Hilliard, Allyn, Saunders, Leigh, Ferebee, Cooke, Ferebee, Old, Allyn, Pegram, and the Mesdames Jennings, Blanche, and Scrivener. Miss Leigh won the first prize, a cut-glass cologne bottle. Miss Ferebee won the second prize, a silver stick pin, and Mrs. Scrivener won the booby, a pig.

AMONG NELSON HILLS.

GAIETY AT THE BUFFALO RIDGE SPRINGS.

Nelson, Aug. 26.—It is in the stillness of the evening, when the shadows slowly, softly gather on the lawn, that the lovers may be seen stealing forth for their last tete-a-tete. Such nights! Such days as we are having! No time for such tame amusements as card-playing and bowling on mornings like these, when the very air breathes of love and freedom. But away we hie to the mountains, to the hills and meadows, for you know those tete-a-tetes, these gayings, with fern-filled baskets, must join the dear delights of yore, and only live in memory's casket.

How full we are crowding these August days, that are fast slipping away from us. The height of the season, the best Buffalo has enjoyed for many summers, is already here, though the climax is yet to be reached in the "Ladies' fancy dress ball," to take place on Friday night.

A PROSPEROUS SEASON.

The Buffalo Ridge has a capacity, when full, to entertain 200 persons. It has had a prosperous season this year, and has been comfortably filled during the past week. Its curative waters have received highest endorsement from physicians and invalids, who have been benefited by their use. For indigestion, in all of its protean phases, they almost prove a specific. They also give relief in many other bodily ailments.

It is probable that more persons frequent this place in search of pleasure than of health. For perfect rest, quiet enjoyment, or reasonable gaiety, it would be hard to find its superior. There are now here scores of gallant beaux and maidens fair, who are usually found sitting or strolling in couples, with the sign prominent that no addition to that company is desired. Friday night Hon. Thomas J. Agee, who is one of the young people, chaperoned by Mrs. Thomas Agee, Mrs. Elizabeth Kirpatrick, Mrs. J. U. Bransford and Mrs. J. W. Colbert.

The ball-room is every night a scene of brilliant gaiety, and the dancing goes on till the witching hour of midnight calls a halt.

We hear many rumors of prize parties (whatever they are) given by the young ladies, and they must be very enjoyable, to judge from the sounds of "revelry by night," and the "music in the air."

Riding and driving parties are still the order of the day, while ten-pins and other games serve to make the hours fly by on golden wings.

The weather here is truly delightful, and the walking parties are enjoying the tramp over these beautiful mountains; the "Switzerland of America" is a much hackneyed expression, but it certainly applies to this exquisite vale, which is described by one of its eloquent citizens as "the loveliest dimple on the face of nature."

BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GIRLS.

Among the new additions to the ranks of beautiful girls one finds Miss Leahy, of Richmond; Miss Cooke, of Mobile, and Miss Mundy, of Annapolis. Buffalo Ridge Springs has become famous for lovely women, and Miss Leahy is assuredly a striking addition to the number already here. We have been abused roundly for giving private opinions in public of beautiful women; but we will take a bit more if only permitted to say that no one comes here who does not see at once and remark upon the great beauty of Mrs. Bransford, of Lynchburg. This lady has a snow hair, but her face is that of a girl of 20.

Miss Margaret Leahy, of Richmond, is the distinguished and favored guest here now. Miss Leahy is a lovely woman, approachable, perfectly assured in her position, and eminently a representative Southern lady. Take her to-night, for instance; what an honor she is to any summer resort; quiet, dignified, robed in her heavy black silk and jet, with the most superb diamonds trying vainly to outshine her eyes. Miss Leahy is magnificent.

NEW GUESTS.

Mr. L. C. Talbot, Lynchburg, Va.; Mr. R. L. Anderson, Danville, Va.; Dr. John Scott and daughter, Miss Katherine, Gordonsville, Va.; Mr. J. W. Bransford, Lynchburg, Va.; Mr. Frank Agee, Lynchburg, Va.; Mr. J. Bradford Collier, Portsmouth, Va.; Miss Parnelia George, Mobile, Ala.; Misses Maud and Ethel Lawson, Brookneal, Va.; Miss Mary Ella Wilkinson, Principal of the Mary Anne Institute, Brookneal, Va.; Miss Kate Clark, Mr. Douglas Ward, Mrs. Besse Clark, Lynchburg, Va.; Misses Cynthia and Margaret Leahy, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Douglas Ward, Lynchburg, Va.; Mrs. J. W. Bransford, Mrs. H. T. Silverthorn, Lynchburg, Va.; Mrs. J. W. Collier and daughter, Portsmouth, Va.; Mrs. O. O. Rhea and daughter, Miss Nellie Kellman, Northampton, Va.; Mr. J. C. ## CROCKETT'S SPRINGS.

NO ABATEMENT OF ENJOYABLE FUNCTIONS HERE.

Crockett's Springs, Va., Aug. 25.—The past week has witnessed no abatement of the enjoyable functions that have all along characterized the social program at Crockett's during the season of 1899.

While the reign of Terpsichore has been but seldom disturbed in the evening, card parties have been the principal source of diversion in the morning. One of these delightful affairs was given Monday night, however, by a popular married lady. All who were bidden enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent, even though perforce a couple of ill-starred young men tied for that emblem of defeat commonly called the booby prize. Dr. Coleman, the resident physician, and Mr. Ed. Tatem, of Lynchmont, N. Y., were the unlucky players in question. The booby was finally awarded to Dr. Coleman, who is by no means proud of the trophy. Mrs. John E. Townes, of Petersburg, won the ladies' booby. Mr. Walter James, of Roanoke, as usual, captured the gentlemen's first prize, while to Mr. Schloss, of Richmond, was presented the prize selected for the successful feminine participant. Immediately following the affair Mrs. Susan C. Tatem, of Lynchmont, N. Y., extended invitations to a like function to be given Tuesday morning at her foliage-embowered cottage that dots the mountain slope. The party was complimentary to her guests, Misses Sue Hunt Russell, Miss Katherine A. S. McCarty, two wise and cultured young ladies from Baltimore, Md. A goodly company of players assembled and contested in a spirit of generous rivalry for the prizes. The tables were placed in position on the veranda, and while the game went merrily on the refreshing breezes from the mountain fanned the faces of the players. Mrs. Charles L. Holland, of Danville, and Mr. John B. Levy, of Baltimore, were the recipients respectively of the ladies' and gentlemen's prizes. During the party the choicest bonbons were served. The guests, with glad acclaim, voted the affair a great success.

On Wednesday morning Mr. and Mrs. John B. Levy, of Baltimore, in honor of their friend, Miss Sarah Curtis, who also resides in the Monumental City, tendered their mutual friends another card party which proved an occasion of great enjoyment. Mrs. Susan Tatem, of Lynchmont, N. Y., won the ladies' prize, with Miss Ransome as proxime accessit. Mr. James captured the gentlemen's prize, with Mr. Ed. Tatem as next best.

A hay ride to Alleghany Springs on Tuesday night, chaperoned by Mrs. Schloss, of Richmond, was participated in by about a dozen of the young guests. It was an event of genuine pleasure. The hay-riders disembarked at Alleghany Springs and made the welkin ring with ear-splitting warwhoops which have long since been adopted as the official cry of the sojourners at Crockett's.

Mrs. John Meley and her daughter, Mrs. Warrington, left for their home in the City by the Sea Thursday morning. Their departure was accompanied by expressions of sincere regret by everyone. To listen nightly to Mrs. Warrington's exquisite voice was one of the rarest pleasures to which the guests there have been treated.

On account of the accident to Mr. J. L. Camp, of Franklin, Va., his family, who have been here domiciled in a cottage for several weeks, were summoned home quite suddenly yesterday, much to the regret of all who had met them.

THE MONTGOMERY WHITE.

(Special to Virginian-Pilot.)

Montgomery Springs, P. O., Va., Aug. 25.—The sunbath is a beautiful red and the first of the golden red is to be seen in the fence corners. These heralds of an early Autumn are here and already coats and capes are making their appearance nights and mornings. The cool crisp air is so invigorating that the hitherto stay-at-homes are donning short dresses, comfortable shoes and with alpen stock in hand wandering in congenial groups to distant objects of interest.

The Juetwelse Cascades and the old mill, near Shawsville, are particularly popular haunts.

The camera is always in evidence and but for the fact that half of the amateurs' pictures never materialize, prudent mamma might question the propriety of their daughters being "snapped" with or without provocation, for 'tis true, you know, that the beauties of nature are never seen when a pretty girl is around.

Although the season is well on, the crowd here continues about the same, one day a face here or there may be missed, but by the next morning a new comer has filled the gap and introductions are soon in order.

Tuesday evening a large progressive euchre party was given in the spacious parlors. The prizes and refreshments came from Roanoke. Mesdames Mitchell and Harrison having made a special trip in order to make the purchases. The score-cards were dainty white stars for the men and green clover leaves for the ladies. The napkins and table clothes also carried out the color scheme, green and white. The prizes were: a silver clock, a handsome china tete-a-tete set, pin tray, coffee cup, large vase of exquisite workmanship and water-color painting.

Mrs. Williams and Mr. Martin, both of Norfolk; Mrs. Nixon, of Mobile; Mrs. Misher, of Houston, and Miss Parrott, of Columbus, were the prize-winners.

Wednesday night the usual German takes place, and as has been the case, a crowd from the Yellow will attend.

A bowling and domino party was enjoyed by a number of young ladies and gentlemen Wednesday morning.

Mrs. C. E. Richardson, of Portsmouth, gave sweet little Miss Dimple Bennett a candy hunt on the lawn Wednesday afternoon. From the bright and happy faces and the volume of noise it was easy to imagine the affair a great success. All have voted Miss Dimple a most charming, and fairy-like hostess.

Excursions to all points near by are now in order; some are to drive over to Alleghany Crockett's, Mountain Lake, while others are going to take advantage of the very cheap excursion over the Norfolk and Western to Luray and Natural Bridge.

ALLEGANY SPRINGS.

A CHILDREN'S BALL THAT GLADDENED ALL HEARTS.

Alleghany Springs, Va., Aug. 26.—By far the most beautiful event of the season, and certainly the longest to be remembered, was the children's ball, which took place on last Friday night. The fun those children had! My! they went at it in good earnest; and what fun for the elders watching them! When the flock of fairy fairies marched into the ball-room no more beautiful picture could be found.

THE CHARACTERS.

They were all there and all were dancing except the youngest two, little Miss Frances Carington, a La France Rose, and Eight-Months-old Miss Avis Freeman, as a pink forget-me-not. Elbert Fowler was splendid as Prince Charming, in a costume of blue cloth and real lace. Avis Grant was beautiful as Babine, in "The Little Minister." Every detail of her costume was perfect. Orlando Wemple was a handsome gentleman of the period. Jessie Whitehurst, as an Abbatian peasant, looked prettier than we had ever seen her. Richard Peake was an excellent Baldy Sour, Sallie Pugh, in a dainty costume of blue silk, was bright and piquant as Marie Antoinette. Dan Colhoun was simply irresistible in red, white and blue, as Uncle Samuel Jonathan. Hortense Lebeck was a shy Japanese maiden, and Irma Lebeck, a beautiful butterfly, was everywhere dancing with the enthusiasm that characterized everything she does. Aubrey Cowan was the fun-loving Jessica. Vaughn Camp—a yellow silk beam in a costume of yellow silk. Mary Foster was dainty as could be as Marguerite. You can't imagine a daintier mother-goose than dear little Sarah Byrne. Ellen Kersey, in a white organdie, trimmed in brown-eyed Susans, made a lovely picture with her golden curls falling over her shoulders. Jennie Louise Colhoun was an ideal Boopie, in a picturesque costume, with her shepherd's crook and the most coquettish of hats. More than one person remarked in passing, "What a beautiful child!" We shall never forget little Jeanette Cowan, the daintiest, fairest of butterflies, with the most beautiful gauzy wings. Beatrice Colhoun was a real queen of hearts, who will some day make the laddies tremble at her smile. Gertrude Beatright, as a colonial dame, brought vividly to mind a picture of "ye olden times." Lillian Wells was an exquisite flower girl. Renée Michael, a little fern maid, was grace personified. Can't you imagine how fairy-like she was in a costume of ferns? Then I can't tell you, for more than once I have been tempted to run away, and leave this week's gayeties untold. Even my pen has caught the infection, and has been like a "jig on a fiddler."

Beautiful as was the exquisite costume of white organdie, trimmed in La France roses, ruffles of roses, a corsage of roses and a belt of roses, won by Louise Watson, it was nothing compared to the beauty of the wearer. No; we will not forget you, little blue forget-me-not, Miss Antoinette Camp. Marshall Pinix was a really forget-me-not, and here are several others, whose costumes, somehow, did not get into our memory: Joseph Moulton, Gladys Moulton, Walker Leach and others. Oscar Barney was a gallant Knight of the Garter, graceful, daring and chivalrous. Charley Colhoun looked as desperate as Jack, the Giant Killer. Robert Colhoun was a model Turk. Junius Peake was a perfect little Jap, and Taylor Peake a perfect little Jap. Oh, what a beautiful little Boy Blue was James Spencer, and what a handsome Count of Monte Christo was Robert Cowan! Two of the very best were: Harrie Seed, handsome as a picture, in an exquisite costume of lace, lavender and yellow satin, as Beau Brummell; and his little brother, Clinton, very much in evidence as a clown—so execratable funny, and yet so grave and dignified that we had eyes for no one else when he was near. Then we must not forget our little naval officer, Robert Lovett, with his manly air and beautiful, earnest face.

CAKE WALK.

After the most beautiful march, and after the lancers were danced, Texas Pete, Pierre Michel and Amberline Snow, Stella Colhoun, two of the very brightest and cunningest characters, danced the cake-walk in a most bewitching way. Their audience was certainly bewitched, for again and again the fairy dancers were encircled, and again and again they entered into the dance with all the exuberance of spirits belonging to healthy childhood.

HULABALLOO.

A happier party was never seen. They danced unweariedly, till the music trailed off into the strains of the last waltz. Then the jangle of the supper-bell broke up the ball, and to the most inspiring strains of music the little folks marched into the dining-room, where, through the kindness of Capt. and Mrs. Colhoun, an elegant supper awaited them—and, oh, such a support! You should have seen the sight of spectators as this gleaming company moved along. Why, all the mothers, aunts, uncles and cousins, all the chaperones and all the dozing papas, followed pell well to the dining-room, there to watch the little folks enjoy themselves. Yes, sir; and they enjoyed it, too.

THE ROANOKE RED.

THE BEAUTIFUL FAVOR GERMAN OF WEDNESDAY.

(Special to Virginian-Pilot.)

Catawba, Va., August 25.—Last night the young men gave a high-class "favor" German, and to Mr. Lewis Langhorn, of Salem, is due its success. He was indefatigable in his efforts to secure it, for he directed the whole thing. The favors were of the latest fashion and were in abundance. The ball-room seemed metamorphosed into a bower of flowers and evergreens, shaded with beautiful candles. The "Red" always spotless in every department, but like its porter, did himself proud in having the ball-room so highly polished that the dancers glided through the figures as if on ice. Every newest figure was danced and every man to come can ever excel ours of August 23, 1899.

At 12 o'clock a claret freeze was served with other refreshments, and at 3 o'clock we all retired with happy thoughts of our beautiful "favor German."

Eighteen couples danced, led by Mr. Lewis Langhorn, of Salem, with Miss Barrie, of Virginia. We also saw Mr. George Logan, Virginia, with Miss Marys, New York city; Mr. Frank Nelms, Roanoke, with Miss Chapman, the Red; Mr. Thomas Hughes, Baltimore, with Miss Flora Berry, Texas; Mr. Clay Chapman, the Red, with Miss Besse Hughes, Baltimore; Mr. W. W. Ballard, Virginia, with Miss Rebecca Henderson, Virginia; Mr. T. L. Marsalis, New York, with Miss Margery Logan, Virginia; Mr. Frank Wiley, Virginia, with Miss Rachel Henderson, Virginia; Mr. Lester Markham, Portsmouth, with Miss Em. Chapman; Mr. S. Rouner with Miss Johnston, Virginia; Mr. Deyere, Virginia, with Miss Jane Johnston, Virginia, with others.

Dr. R. M. Wiley, Dr. Jerome Carr, Mr. Ashton Tinsley and Mr. Hunter Muller danced as stars. The ladies presiding at the "favor" tables were: Mrs. T. J. Marsalis, New York; Mrs. Harry Constable, Mrs. Y. T. Berry, Texas; Mrs. L. C. Mason, Maryland.

The chaperones were: Mrs. Harry Brooks, Suffolk; Mrs. F. C. Carruth, Louisiana; Mr. H. C. Graham, Arkansas; Mrs. D. C. Shanks, Virginia; Mrs. S. O. LeBlanc, Louisiana. A. H. G.
